Running back Kelvin Bryant, whose injured neck has kept him from practicing all preseason, has been told by a Los Angeles specialist that he won't be able to play until at least Oct. 1, the Washington Redskins announced today.

Bryant, the Redskins' leading rusher last season, was examined Friday in Los Angeles by Dr. Robert Watkins, an associate of well-known sports doctors Frank Jobe and Robert Kerlan. Watkins's opinion was delivered today.

"Obviously that's a setback for us," Coach Joe Gibbs said after practice.

Although Gibbs said he has not thought about what he will do with
